Considerable excitement prevailed through the streets of our city yesterday. The news of the attempted assassination of one of the police officers at the corner of Market and Broadway, and the fact that another place, spread like wildfire, and in a short time little squads of excited men were seen in all parts of the city, discussing the probable result of the affair, but the general opinion appeared to be that "figger it out," and that the police would be able to take care of the matter, and that it would end in a general purging of the city of the gamblers and cut-throats. It was at one time currently reported that the stores were closed, and that the streets were filled with armed men. These reports, however, all needed confirmation, and rather appeared to be the result of that morbid desire for excitement which is a natural consequence of the stirring news of the crime. The excitement of the people to agitate our whole populace; the vaguest report is sufficient to arouse the whole city. It is to be hoped that before long affairs will return to their usual channel, and that the city will be able to maintain its order and permanent basis. The action of the Committee of Vigilance was canvassed a good deal on the streets yesterday; the general opinion appears to be that they were not to be depended on, and that they would not need the jobbers till they have accomplished all that they are striving for.

There appears to be no cessation in the preparations which are going on in the vicinity of the Committee Room, and it is not probable that any serious attack against an attack, and there is not the least probability that they will ever be found unprepared for action—at all events, they are not to be depended on.

The Initiative Committee are, we understand, constantly engaged in adding recruits to their forces, and we are credibly informed that up to last night they numbered over a hundred men. The Committee are men. A number of companies have been patrolling and drilling in the streets during the night, and considering the short time they have been engaged in, the results are certainly very remarkable. The Committee are evidently of the opinion that the military exercises. The proceedings of the Initiative Committee are certainly characterized by the utmost coolness and deliberation; confident of their own power, they are perfectly indifferent to the mathematics of the situation, and are not at all anxious to understand that twenty-six horses were placed at the disposal of the Committee yesterday morning, by a gentleman who had just arrived from the lower country. We are also pleasantly cognizant of the fact, that a party of gentlemen from Placer county, who came down to this place on important business, when they learned the state of affairs here, positively refused to be disturbed by the excitement, and returned and are now, in the language of one of the party, "waiting to see it out." There are certainly all the elements for sustaining a vigorous attack to be found in the lower country.

The feeling in the interior is almost unanimously in favor of the Vigilance Committee and in strong deprecation of the late action of the Governor in issuing that order of the 20th inst. which invited the militia of the county of San Francisco to be in a state of insurrection. There is not a mining town in the mountains that will not furnish its quota of men to assist the people in the lower country. Advice to that effect is rapidly pouring in from all quarters. Such a whole unanimity of feeling as exists throughout the whole country is rarely seen, and is certainly strong proof, à la evidence of the justice of the cause in which they are engaged.

Law and order are about the only topics that we did not hear discussed about town yesterday. The representatives of our "glorious Constitution"—those who have been elected to the Legislature in a few days since, were going to annihilate mobocracy, seen to have sunk into most ignominious disgrace. We go about the streets and ask, "Where are they?" and the answer is, "They are in the lower country." The resignation of General Sherman, and the refusal of General Wool to furnish them with arms, have been most effectual in damping the enthusiasm of the lower country. Many men around the ballot-box to preserve it from the hands of a people, but their pugilistic genius would be of but very little account when brought into collision with cold-blooded assassins.

that there was anything wrong in its construction or design. The cover opened by means of a commotion from below, which was effected by means of a long pole, the spring of which has been carefully filed away, so that by a certain pressure upon the edge of the cover it can be opened without the key, while it is impossible to do so without this peculiar influence upon the cover. The inner portion of the box had every appearance of genuineness and fairness, and about one hundred votes were observed, some of which were used in electing around the bottom of the box and about two inches wide, and drawing out with the hand board, a very thin bottom board, which was fitted in between the other bottom, thereby leaving a space for placing tickets at the top and thus effecting the commencement of the election. In this space were found a large number of ballots nicely and snugly folded together, corresponding with one kind that was found in the lower apartment of the box. At one end of the box a similar opening was found, which revealed a space sufficient to hold five hundred votes, and which was opened by drawing the slide downwards from the bottom of the box. In this apartment were found ballots in correspondence with the other kind in the general assortment.

This is a description of what we saw, but to explain the modes operandi of its working, or how to elect tickets, could not be predicated on the personal experience of a regularly educated student, of whom we have an extensive well drilled scholar in our midst. As we have no hope of getting them to elucidate on points such as could be predicated on their studies and speculations. We have stated upon facts, and the most sensible conclusion we can arrive at is, that these two private places are supplied with a certain number of votes prior to opening the polls, those of one party or another, according to the will of the manipulators. Election or farce goes on as usual, and the polls are closed. Every one can see that everything has been conducted fairly, and the count is proceeded with, and here found ballots in correspondence with the others, and the highest bidder will be selected. As these stuffers generally refuse to allow any one in the poll room until their dirty work is done, it is easy to draw the inference that the tickets in the upper table, will give one ticket four or five hundred votes; the bottom slides may be drawn and the votes all turned upon the table, and thus give the other ticket the election in accordance with the price paid.

THE AMERICAN DIFFICULTY.

Via San Francisco we have papers to the 20th of May.

THE DIRMICAL OF CRAMPTON.—The correspondent at Washington of the New York Herald, states that the Russian minister, Count Schouvaloff, who he said, it had been determined on, and Mr. Crampton was to be officially notified, but the President was informed by the French Minister, that a British express messenger had arrived with a reply to Secretary Marcy's demand and the subject left him in doubt.

THE REPLY OF GREAT BRITAIN.

"Washington, May 19, 1856.

"The Cabinet sat to-day until half-past-four, deliberating upon the answer of the British Government, which will be again to-day presented to the Senate, in unusual proceeding. The character of the reply reviveth the issue of any threatening consequences, except those necessarily resulting from a suspension of friendly intercourse, and the Government are anxious to avoid the dismissal takes place. The paper is uncommonly adroit and ably put. Much labour has been expended on it."

"The British Government now distinctly disavows having entertained any intention to violate our municipal laws or outrage our national sovereignty. Whatever we may believe to be contrary to that declaration, no political action can be predicated on the assumption that the disclaimer must be accepted, if the Government is concerned. While the controversy rested upon the supposed countenance or connivance of Great Britain, it was necessarily serious in its event, matter of course, and the Government on that point by positive assurances, such apprehensions are easily satisfied. The question is plainly resolved into one of personal application affecting Mr. Crampton, and his removal from office, and if he is not guilty; we think otherwise, and therefore they are unacceptable."

[By Telegraph, via New Orleans.]

WASHINGTON, May 21st of CLARENDON DISMISSED.—Mr. Crampton did not receive his dismissal on Saturday. The Cabinet are awaiting the arrival of the Amb's mail.—N. O. Crescent, May 22.

"The British Government has received the San Francisco Chronicle, writing on the 20th May says:

"Mr. Buchanan is indignant at Lord Palmerston and Earl Clarendon's reiterated misrepresentations as to the events material to the dispute, and that the whole character of their occasional and social remarks, and the great object warranted him in supposing that the object was to sound our Government as to its views and not to present us with propositions. As evidence, his playful manner is cited in the Chronicle. His conversations, being determined not to regard the suggestions as menacing anything till the British Government becomes committed by a distinct offer. According to his view, matters would be settled, and if Russia is represented even now, could not be acted upon by the Senate."

The central American difficulties are still more complicated than before, and the result of the late war, which occurred since the publication of the British Blue-book of correspondence, in which the following extract is found:

CLAYTON TO EARL OF CLARENDON Received April 13th.

"Washington, March 31, 1856.

"It will be within your Lordship's recollection that Mr. Clayton was informed by Sir Henry Bulwer, before the treaty of London was signed, that the de jure and de facto a British possession, and Mr. Clayton has, on various occasions since, in conversation with me, stated that he considered Ruanan as much more a British colony as Jamaica, or any other British West India island."

"On the 14th Mr. Clayton rose in the Senate and pronounced Mr. Crampton's statement untrue in relation to the present case, and that the British Minister must have laboured under a hallucination. He said, as ever entered the brain of any man, to make such a declaration. Nothing like it had ever entered the mind of any man conversing with Mr. Crampton or anybody else. He read a letter written by Mr. Crampton on the 7th January, 1854, (replying to an interrogatory of the hon. Mr. Clayton.) After receipt of that letter, Mr. Clayton, a few days after, returned to the United States, and stated that the islands which were the dependencies of Belize, were marked out in the Anglo-Spanish treaty of 1786, and, (as Ruanan is not named or referred to in that treaty) that the islands were not included in the treaty, and no dependency of Belize, and therefore could not be, if Great Britain claimed it as a dependency of Belize, exempted from the operation of the treaty of 1850. He said, "I am not aware of any official refutation of the statements which I now make." The first time published, as under his (Mr. Crampton's) authority; that the said Ruanan was a British possession, either by treaty, or by any other West Indian title; because he had said that the islands of the Mirago, he had claimed the island in any other way, or by any other title than as a dependency of Belize." Moreover in March or February last, while ill at his lodgings, he had said that the islands of the Mirago, and he had then (Mr. Crittenden of Kentucky being present), asked Mr. Crampton "whether there was any charge that he had ever admitted that Ruanan was a British possession, or whether he had, in 1850, and was exempted from its operations," to which question Mr. Crampton replied by acknowledging in unqualified terms, "that there was nothing of the kind, and that he never intended to make such an imputation."

Here Mr. Clayton appealed to Senator Crittenden for confirmation of his words; and that gentleman refused to attempt to state the whole conversation, which was held on the 14th of March; but I am confident that Mr. Clayton made no admission that the island of Ruanan belonged to Great Britain, but, on the contrary, asserted and contended earnestly that the island was not covered by the treaty of 1850, and to be abandoned and yielded, according to the terms of that treaty. Mr. Crampton did then say or intimate that Mr. Clayton had ever admitted, to him that Ruanan belonged to Great Britain."

You perceive that, while Mr. Clayton's account of this conversation, in connection with the extract from the Chronicle, shows that the British Minister had contradicted his own "unqualified" assertion a few days after it was uttered, Mr. Crittenden's testimony merely proves that "Mr. Clayton made no admission that Ruanan belonged to Great Britain; but on the contrary, he asserted and contended earnestly that the island was not covered by the treaty of 1850, and to be abandoned and yielded, according to the terms of that treaty. Mr. Crampton did then say or intimate that Mr. Clayton had ever admitted, to him that Ruanan belonged to Great Britain."

On account of Mr. Richard Fawcett.

The justly celebrated stallion "Waverley," by St. George, out of a mare by "Hercules," and by imported "Gracie," by "Rubens," her dam Belinda, by Benning-brough. St. George, by Seagrave, out of a mare by Governor, her dam Annette, by Benning-brough, out of Expectation, by Herod.

"Waverley" is well known as the sire of the best horses the colony has yet produced, including Spiritman, Huntsman, and others of our very best race horses, and is not possibly as in his favour—he is considered by the most competent judges as the finest thoroughbred stallion now in the colony. His condition is a variety of persons. It is no doubt that his purchaser will easily clear a very handsome amount for his services during the ensuing season. He is now on view.

BURT, HASSALL, and CO. are instructed to sell by auction, at the Bazaar, on SATURDAY next, at 12 o'clock.

"Doctor," an exceedingly handsome bay horse, 4 years old, bred by Thomas Roberts, Esq., and imported from the United States, out of the celebrated imported mare Giggler, the dam of Vanity, Vanguard, Revenge, &c. He is an exceedingly fast horse, and is now in full training for the coming Liverpool meeting. He would make a very first-class hack for a lady or a light weight.

BURT, HASSALL, and CO. will sell by auction, at the Bazaar, on FRIDAY next, at 2 o'clock.

20 strong able young horses and mares, just arrived from the Big River. They are in fair condition; a few have been handled, the remainder are unbroken.

BURT, HASSALL, and CO. are instructed to sell by auction, at the Bazaar, on SATURDAY, at 12 o'clock.

The thoroughbred stallion "Lancer," by Donisthorpe, out of Zela, by old Emigrant, out of Zella, by Satellite, out of Emily, by Old Hector. Donisthorpe by Catalyst.

Lancer was foaled in November, 1880; is an exceedingly handsome horse, worthy of distinction either for stud purposes or as a really magnificent charger.
